

Advice about your visa
if you've been hurt or harmed
by your partner

Your partner cannot cancel
your visa

Advice about your visa if you've been hurt or harmed by your partner

If you have a partner (spouse, fiancé, de facto or same sex) who is an Australian citizen or permanent resident, and they have sponsored you for a partner visa, you will usually get a temporary visa for 2 years before you are given a permanent visa.

If your relationship ends or you want to leave your partner before you get the permanent visa, you must get legal advice as soon as possible.

Your partner cannot cancel your visa.

You might still be able to get a permanent visa if your relationship has ended and:

- there was domestic violence, or
- you have children of the relationship, or
- your sponsor died

For further information you can contact:

Legal Aid NSW: 9219 5790

Immigration Advice & Rights Centre: 8234 0799

LawAccess NSW: 1300 888 529

 If you need a translator, please call the Translating and Interpreting Service (TIS) on 13 14 50.

If you are in immediate trouble call the Police: 000

This brochure is available in Arabic, Chinese, Assyrian, Bengali, Hindi, Indonesian, Khmer, Korean, Farsi, Spanish, Tagalog, Thai & Vietnamese

For copies visit www.legalaid.nsw.gov.au/publications or email:
publications@legalaid.nsw.gov.au or call 9219 5028.

www.legalaid.nsw.gov.au